Courier announces winners of 2020 Best Places to Work awards

Sep 24, 2020, 1:23pm EDT Updated: Sep 24, 2020, 1:32pm EDT

The Courier announced the winners today of our Best Places to Work awards, the annual program recognizing companies and organizations that rank at the top for workforce engagement.

Because of Covid-19 concerns, we weren't able to celebrate the announcement with our typical "pep rally" at Xavier University's Cintas Center this year. While our staff misses the energy and creativity of that event, we did enjoy reading about the special ways companies are supporting their employees during this pandemic.

To determine the awards, companies were divided into five categories by size, and finalists were ranked by employee-satisfaction scores in a range of areas. The winners received the highest score in each size category among first-time participants, veteran participants and past winners.

This year's 13 winners are:

10 to 24 employee

First-time participant: NP Development

Veteran participant: BSB Group International
